Justice

Lesson for June 16, 1963

People who talk about the separation of church and state often do not know just what they are talking about. As the founding fathers of America saw it, there is a danger in the possibility of the state's supporting one church or one form of religion against all others. The framers of the constitution had seen some examples of state religions and they did not want to make the same mistake here. However, it was not their intention to rule religion out of public life. These were the same people who started the custom of inaugurating presidents and other high officials with religious oaths and public prayer. These were the same people who adopted the motto "In God we Trust."

Justice is Demanded

In the view of the Bible, justice is not optional but demanded. The prophets spoke of justice, they were speaking of it as a requirement, not optional but demanded. The prophet Micah speaks of justice as one of the three great requirements of religion along with mercy and humility before God. Justice is woven into the Ten Commandments and into American ideals. A man's dare not fancy himself religious, he dare not fancy that he can please God, if he is not just in all his dealings, so far as he is able. All forms of Christianity have this (and much else, to be sure) in common with one another and with the religion of the Jews: Religion and right conduct go hand in hand. Religion that is genuine calls for a life devoted to justice. This does not mean that every man is called to be a lawyer or a judge. It does mean that every day every person is faced with some decision, perhaps many, in which he is tempted to be unjust.

Justice is Defense

There is one very interesting feature of the Bible's interest in justice. It is hardly ever defined as simple fairness; it is more often seen as taking sides. It is the notion of some people, though how they can think so is a puzzle to any who knows a bit of history—a notion that justice so to speak is automatic. There is something in the nature of things that works toward justice—so this idea supposes—so that we do not have to try hard, much less fight, for justice. Everything will come out right in the end if you will just leave everything alone! Of course, it does not. Whenever injustice, in any form, has passed away or become less, it has because some one was bold enough and strong enough, not only to speak up for the victims of injustice, but to stand up for them. Justice, mentioned in the Old Testament so often, means taking sides when one side is unfair to the other; "the poor," "the needy," the oppressed" these words are common. The Ten Commandments begin with an introduction to God. "I am a just God." Rather, "I am the Lord thy God who brought thee out of the house of bondage." God is the kind of God who is everywhere and always on the side of the oppressed and against those who do the oppressing. Justice, if you believe in it, often demands that you fight for it, Justice is defense.

Justice is Divine

Unjust people seldom think of themselves as unjust. Every one knows in his heart of hearts that injustice is wrong. Every one resents injustice fast enough if he is the victim; very few people can see injustice being done when they are the oppressors, not the oppressed. Injustice has many evil consequences, but itself is rooted in selfishness. In the days when society was organized in the feudal pattern, nobody thought it wrong that the serfs, at the bottom of the ladder, were cruelly treated. "Noblemen' would resent, at sword's point, the kind of treatment they gave the serfs every day. If you asked a nobleman about this, he would have said it was no injustice, he was so much superior that he deserved superior treatment. If every age those who battle for justice have the equivalent of the feudal so-called noblemen against them. There is one comfort for the fighter for justice: He may be sure that the God who hates injustice is on his side.

Pastor Speaks

A truly great person never really finds out he is great. He is too much taken up with thinking about others to be concerned with self. When one discovers that he is great, then he is no longer great.

If you have discovered that you are not humble. Humility is absorbed in the things of God and his service to others.

There had arisen no small stir and dispute among some of the followers of our Lord while Jesus was with his disciples. Luke in 22:24 gives us the record. These disciples had gotten into quite a discussion about greatness and who was to be the greatest among them. So much so that strife had arisen among them. Jesus accoted them for their proud humility and then gave them the formula for greatness. 'He that is chief among you, as he that serves'. Billy Sunday, the great evangelist of another decade used to tell Ia audiances that 'Everybody was proud: some people are proud that they are not proud'.

Just this past week, the principal of our elementary school concluded a long and unselfish career as teacher and principal. Her unselfish spirit and attitude have been a part of her nature in these years as teacher and principal. It is kind of spirit which characterizes greatness. She seemed to have the insight into the needs of those whom she served, and the kind of spirit to get the job done unselfishly. As one member of the community I would like to express my gratitude to her for her devotion and unselfish service. We shall miss her in the school system.

Unconscious greatness never looks upon itself as being a benefactor of greatness. Yet those who serve in this manner have a rich heritage which time and eternity will enhance.

Sometimes our love for power and recognition draws us away from the best service. So we must always have it tempered and seasoned with God in Christ. Not only will ill this make effective our service to others, but also brings the approval of God. The road to greatness is strewn with the flowers of service, love, and desire to help others.

With a desire to serve God, and also to become better equipped to serve our fellowman, we should attend the church services of our faith. Be in your place Sunday with your family.

Pastor William E. Carpenter left Monday, June 3, to join other ministers, Bible workers and other church employees from all over the Potomac Conference at the camp site at New Market, Va. to help prepare for the inlux of 5 or 6000 persons at the 10-day session.

He will be busy until opening day, Thursday June 13, putting up direction signs, stringing electrical wiring, placing thousands of chairs and a host of other duties, required to prepare the camp site for the convention.

The Appomattox Adventist members are expecting one of the biggest and most important conferences ever held by the denomination at New Market. Pastor Carpenter said, in reference to his unusual duties, 'And the ministers and other church workers are going to do all they can to make these expectations come true.'

'The purpose of this great convocation is to re-emphasize values and renew consecration of church members. With God's help and our own labors this year's camp meeting will fully realize this purpose,' he said.

For those who will not be able to attend camp meeting the regular church services will be conducted at the usual hours.

We need more projects like that now in these Centennial Years. Publicity is money. The travel business is worth millions of dollars to Virginia. Appomattox has dragged its feet all too long. I think some of it has been due to the very understandable fact that "surrender" is a word lots of folks don't relish. But there is nothing, but nothing, but glory for the great men who followed John B. Gordon up the slope to the Old Court House at Appomattox that Palm Sunday in 1865.

To The People Of Appomattox County

I, Walter S. Conner, sincerely solicit your support, vote, and influence in the Democratic Primary of July 9th, 1963, in which I am a candidate to succeed myself as SHERIFF OF APPOMATTOX COUNTY.

I promise you that I will continue to serve you deligently, honestly and efficiently as I have done the past Three Years as your SHERIFF, and Ten Years as Depty Sheriff, and Four Years and Eight Months (thirty two months over seas) as a member of the Armed Forces of the United States (U. S. Army).

My wife, Lucille and I have two children, Neil age 16 and Gail age 14, who attend Appomattox High School.

As I receive no out side income, we would all greatly appreciate your vote, support and influence.

Thank you,
Sheriff Walter S. Conner
